In the weeks immediately ahead a decidedly pro-development municipal council in Kings County is set to rezone close to 600 acres of agricultural land for residential, commercial and/or industrial uses.

This municipal council has been described by external reviewers as dysfunctional, lacking in ability to plan for either the short or long term benefit of Kings County. The review also spoke about the detrimental impact on council of some councillors' individual agendas. We call them "the bully councillors." Calls for their resignations of councillors have been unsuccessful. In a bid for change, council let several key staff members go, unanimously endorsed a Code of Conduct, but unabashed, thinly veiled lobbying by councillors for the interests of a few developers continues.

Our new website invites you to help us stop this council from destroying Kings County farmland.

Please spread the word by sending the link to our website to your networks.
